

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

In a device for processing data signals, a storing part stores an input signal and the data signals included in the input signal are extracted
5 from the storing part and the data signals are output at a desired output speed. Then, the data signal is output based on storage information of the input signal.

2025-04-04